

JOHN PRIMBLE POCKET KNIVES

The Blades—There positively is no finer Pocket Knife made than "John Primble". The blades which are the most important thing about a pocket knife are carefully forged from the very finest quality India Steel. There are no superiors.

Workmanship—In the manufacture of John Primble Pocket Knives only the very latest modern methods, combined with the most skilled workmanship are employed. Such detail as hardening, tempering, grinding and finishing is done with perfect accuracy which insures uniform excellence.

Stag Handles—The Stag Handles on John Primble Pocket Knives are genuine, made from finest quality stag horns. The stag is carefully inspected for choice stock making it impossible to apply imperfect handles to the knives.

Pearl Handles—Only shells of the first water are selected for use on John Primble Pearl Handle Pocket Knives, presenting the perfect skin of delicate texture, free from specks or flaws. They are clear translucent and of beautiful color.

Inspection—Every John Primble Pocket Knife after having been made goes through a rigid inspection which makes the general excellence so superior that John Primble Pocket Knives have grown steadily in popularity for over 40 years. Every user of a Pocket Knife recognizes and appreciates quality. That is what you get in a John Primble. The quality of these knives is backed by the reputation of the Belknap Hardware and Manufacturing Company, protecting the dealers and consumers from defects and flaws incident to manufacture or faulty material.

Proper Care of Pocket Knives—They should be sharpened on oil stone holding the back of blade slightly elevated so that only the cutting edge rests on stone. Do not lay the blade flat like honing a razor. Never put a Pocket Knife blade on a stone or emery wheel. Never carry a Pocket Knife in a sweaty pocket as this will cause the linings of the knife to rust.

POCKET KNIVES

Remington.

Only one grade of steel is used in making Remington Pocket Knives—the same steel, the same hardening and tempering process is used in all of them.

Remington pocket knives are hand honed just before being cleaned, wrapped and packed. They come to you with a strong, keen edge, ready for use, and this edge lasts.

The accuracy of precision methods enter into the solid construction and fitting of Remington pocket knives—springs of strength and resiliency insure smooth positive action blades.

Handle covers are a wide variety of redwood, black, English cocobolo, American bone stag, genuine English stag, specially selected pearl, gold, nickel silver, Buffalo horn and Pyramite, a durable material produced in many strikingly beautiful colors.

The blade and handle finish is superior in every detail as befits a product of quality—the quality which merits respect and makes friends.

Educating the public to quality as well as price is something for us to think of seriously. Some competition is along the line of price, and if the independent retailer by honest dealing can build up a confidence with the consumer that will encourage him to think of quality before price, he will make many sales that might otherwise be lost.

Courteous service at all times is most essential to sales promotion. Think well of the saying, "A satisfied customer is your best advertisement." Courtesy is very easily given to the pleasant customers, but the rub comes with the unpleasant ones.
